FHA Officers Plan For FHA Week

The officers and advisors of Appomattox County High School Senior Chapter Future Homemakers of America have planned a very eventful week of March 31 - April 6, 1974, when National Future Homemakers of America Week will be observed.

On Sunday, March 31, members of the local F.H.A. chapter will attend the church of their choice with their families.

Future Homemakers at ACHS will be publicizing F.H.A. Week on two radio stations. Each morning, they will be heard on WACHS, a radio program in the high school. During the week, at 4:00 p.m. each day, F.H.A. members will be broadcasting from radio station WFLO in Farmville.

On Tuesday, F.H.A. members will attend the spring meeting of the Campbell-Appomattox Federation, Future Homemakers of America at Brookville High School in Lynchburg.

Wednesday, during school, members led by Kay Stratton, chapter president, will hold their monthly meeting in the school cafeteria.

Thursday will be observed as "Be Nice to Teacher Day." Members will bring homemade baked goods to the teacher of their choice. On Thursday afternoon, several members will be featured on WLVA television. The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet will be held on Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria for all members and their mothers.

The last activity of the week will be carried out on Saturday, when each F.H.A. member will be responsible for preparing a meal for her family.

Future Homemakers of America is a vital part of home economics education. Members are able to establish roles that foster better development in their home and family life.

S.C.A. News

The March meeting of the Appomattox County High School Student Cooperative Association was held on March 20, 1974. President Patsy Hughes called the meeting to order and the Chaplain, Teresa Smith, gave devotions. Carolyn Winston, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. The minutes were approved.

Under discussion of old business, Patti Clements gave a report on the doughnut sale and Al Johnson reported on S.C.A. elections. Patti reported that we had earned about $20.00 on the doughnut sales after debts and that the sales would end next week. Al reported that the primary election ballots for the 1974-75 S.C.A. officers had been received and would be tabulated. He reported that campaigning would take place on March 25-27 and that speeches and final elections would be held on March 28. Elections for upcoming sophomore officers is being held at Appomattox Intermediate School simultaneously.

Regrading the school parking lot and helping the sociology classes with an ecology project were the items under new business. After discussion on the parking lot, the S.C.A. appointed Tye Beasly to look into securing the help of the agriculture department to regrade the lot. It was suggested that the S.C.A. help the sociology classes with an ecology program and project during Earth Week, April 1-7. Teresa Smith was appointed to be chairwoman of a committee to carry out this suggestion.

Since there was no additional business, the meeting was adjourned by Patsy Hughes, President.

CCJ Meeting Set For April 4th

The Virginia Council on Criminal Justice will meet for the first time in the state's western area, with its next monthly session set for April 4 in Lynchburg.

The meeting will start at 9:30 a.m. in the Lynchburg Board of Education building, 1001 Court Street.

Sessions of the criminal justice supervisory group are taking place periodically in different parts of Virginia, explained Richard N. Harris, executive director of the Council and director of its administrative agency, the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention. Previous meetings away from Richmond have been in Fairfax County and Virginia Beach.

Regular CCJ meetings are the first Thursday each month at the State Capitol. The May and July sessions, however, are scheduled the second Thursdays.

Harris said the Council will convene in Lynchburg to enable citizens of the western area to attend more easily and observe it in action. The public and news media are invited to hear the discussions and see its procedure of awarding grants for local criminal justice programs, Harris added.

The Lynchburg session will also give Council members an opportunity to meet criminal justice personnel of the area and get on-the-scene views of projects to which it has given funds during the part five years, the DJCP director and Council official pointed out.

The Council gives grants each month to localities and state agencies for various criminal justice activities, including law enforcement, courts, prosecution, corrections, and juvenile delinquency prevention and treatment.

The CCJ, designated as Virginia's criminal justice coordinating and policy-making body, carries on its day-to-day operations through the Division of Justice and Crime Prevention. The DJCP receives applications for criminal justice projects--mostly on the city, town, and county levels--and processes them for presentation to the supervising Council. The CCJ members decide whether to approve, deny, or defer the applications or to take other actions.

In addition to awarding grants--ranging from $100 to half a million dollars or Council decides policy questions, initiates studies, adopts recommendations, considers appeals or revisions of previous decisions, and acts on a variety of other matters.

The CCJ's monthly grants combine state money appropriated by the General Assembly with "block" funds given to the DJCP annually by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), a branch of the U.S. Justice Department. The current fiscal year's block allocation was $10.8 million. An additional $1.3 million came to Virginia for the CCJ to award to state and local agencies for special correctional programs.

Most grants require a matching amount of at least 10%, with 90% of the awards coming from the annual block allocation. The matching funds normally are divided equally between local money and state general fund appropriations administered by the DJCP.

The state's appropriation to the DJCP, used for 5% "buy-in" matching funds along with the CCJ awards and local cash matches, was $1.1 million for the present fiscal year.

In addition, the LEAA awards a few grants directly to applicants in Virginia for particular types of programs from a federal "discretionary" fund. The local applications are channeled through the DJCP for endorsement by the state Council, and the money is also funneled through the Virginia criminal justice agency.

Cooperation between the CCJ, DJCP, and LEAA is based on the federal Crime Control Act of 1973, along with state legislation. The Crime Control Act, passed last August, replaced the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

The CCJ awards its grants on criteria spelled out in an annual comprehensive plan for criminal justice programs. The yearly plan deals with all sections of the state and local criminal justice system, including police and sheriffs, courts, Commonwealth's attorneys, jails and other correctional agencies, and juvenile delinquency prevention and treatment efforts.

Applications from local governments are also required to meet the provisions of regional criminal justice plans developed by Virginia's 22 planning district commissions, and they are reviewed by regional criminal justice advisory groups before final action by the state Council.

Criminal justice planners in all 22 districts assist local agencies in surveying their needs, formulating the annual regional plans based on local requirements, developing applications for CCJ funds, and coordinating criminal justice projects. Several cities also have criminal justice planners on their administrative staffs.

Mental Health Program Set For April 3rd

Topics relating to mantal health and the feeding of the elderly will make up the program for the fifth-grader Lynchburg Regional Health Forum to be held in the auditorium of Virginia Baptist Hospital in Lynchburg at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, April 3, 1974. The Forum is being co-sponsored by the State Women's Committee of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation and the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care.

Dr. Dorothy Rowe, head of the Department of Home Economics at Madison College in Harrisonburg, will speak on "Feeding for the Elderly." Ms. Sue Holland, Associate Minister of the Euclid Christian Church of Lynchburg, will speak on "Being a Bread Winner in Life."

Mrs. Oris M. Mack of Lynchburg, Extension Agent of the Cooperative Extension Service of Virginia Polytechnic Institute & State Univ., will preside at the Forum. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Hugh M. Burleigh, a former Methodist of Lynchburg. Betty L. Walters, Chrmn. of the State Women's Committee of the Va. Farm Bureau and Edgar J. Fisher, Jr., Director of the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend the Forum, which will adjourn at 12:30 p.m.

STONEWALL EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS CLUB

The March meeting of the Stonewall Extension Homemakers Club was held in the home of Mrs. Hallie Roope with the ten members and one guest, Mrs. Shirley Walton. Mrs. Roope led the devotions, and Mrs. Helen Routon read a poem.

The "Pennies for Friendship" were taken, the roll was called, the minutes were read and approved and the Treasurer's report was given.

The President explained that "Nickles for National" would be nation-wide, and the money collected would go to help certain club members attend national conventions. The motion was made, and seconded, to have our club participate, and a collection for this was taken.

Mrs. Routon told us that the Lynchburg Garden Week was April 22, 1974 and several members expressed a desire to take the tour.

Susie Krantz reported on the cards that she had sent.

The location of the August picnic was discussed.

Mrs. Walton explained the idea of the Information and Referral Center of Central Virginia. We discussed the District III meeting in Nelson, on April 17th. Mrs. Walton also discussed the Home Furnishings Forum, to be held in Lynchburg on April 25th; she also reminded us of the TV program Saturday morning on Channel 13.

The Fireman's Carnival was discussed, with members volunteering to make pies, and to help serve the supper.

Information on the "Defensive Driving Course for Women" was given by Susie Krantz. The dates for this 8-hour course will be April 16, 18, 23, 25.

Mrs. Routon reminded the club members of the Virginia Baptist Hospital on April 3rd.

The program for the April meeting, which will be held at the home of Annette Alvis, will be "Counting Calories."

Mrs. Inez Foster presented the Federation program on "Driveway Entrances," she gave some very interesting examples.

We recited the HOmemakers Creed and Prayer; then Mrs. Frances Gilliam presented the program, "Decorating with a Flair."

When we adjourned, our hostess served delicious refreshments.

6½% annual interest on our $1,000 minimum, one-year savings certificates
6¾% on our $1,000 minimum, 30-month certificates.
7½% on our $5,000 minimum, 4-to-5 year certificates
Whichever of our certificate plans suits your individual savings needs best, you can always be sure of two things:
1. Your money will be earning the highest interest rate possible anywhere on insured savings.
2. Your savings will be safe — insured up to $20,000 per account by an agency of the federal government.
As you probably know, the law requires a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of certificate savings, but that's true of all financial institutions. At First Federal, the big difference is our higher rate of return and our friendly, down-to-earth people who are ready to serve you.
